

Healthcare improvement Scotland

New models for Learning Disability Day Centres Collaborative.

Part 1
October 2020 - May 2021

Part 2
June 2021 – March 2022

Background

What is Health Care Improvement Scotland (HIS)?

HIS is part of NHS Scotland. It was set up to make sure that people in Scotland get the best standards of health and social care.

What is i-Hub

i-Hub is part of HIS. This project supports the people and organisations that provide health and social care services to keep improving services for people.

Collaborative means a group of people working together

The Learning Disability Day Support Collaborative

This is a project that is about working together to make day services better for supported people and their unpaid carers and families.

They will work with 4 Health and Social Care Partnerships (HSCPs) from October 2020-March 2021.

HSCP are made up of people from the NHS and the council and they decide what services are needed and what they should look like in their area.

The collaborative is working with 4 different HSCP from all over Scotland.

They are:

- Falkirk Health and Social Care Partnership
- North Ayrshire Health and Social Care Partnership
- Perth and Kinross Health and Social Care Partnership

- West Lothian Health and Social Care Partnership

What will the collaborative look like?

Groups of people from the 4 HSCPs will work together in teams, with support from HIS staff. They will share ideas about what works well just now in day support services in their local area and what needs to be better. They will also talk about the things that are making change difficult.

They will hold learning sessions and get coaching sessions from HIS staff.

They will agree on plans together on what needs to happen next so they can all design better services in their local areas.

HIS Approach

We will take the time to understand the problem before coming up with solutions.

This extra time will make sure that we are creating the right thing and that it meets the needs of service users, staff and organisations.

Service users will be involved in the design of services from the beginning.

Aims of the Collaborative

The aim is to learn from the other partners.

Use that learning to make changes that will last and meet the needs of supported people and their families/carers.

They will look for evidence of the current models of day support services.

They learn from different models of day support.

They will talk about what are the most important things that need to change.

They will agree on plans together on what needs to happen next so they can all design better services in their local areas.

HIS want to encourage all the HSCPs to use co-production to make services better.

Co-production is when those who make decisions about what services should look like work together with the people who use them to plan services together.

They also want to encourage them to think about how to make sure people are treated equally.

They want to focus on people's strengths and abilities.

They have four big changes they want to see happen at the end of this work:

1. There are different kinds of support options available for adults with a learning disability so that people have choice and control.

This is important and is what it says in the principles of Self Directed Support.

Self Directed Support is the approach the Scottish Government is taking to the reform of Adult social care support.

2. Support families/carers/supporters to access a break from caring by providing better day services.

3. Support people who use services to be fully involved in decision making and designing of the services that they want.

4. Support all the different providers of day support to work together better.

His know that the COVID 19 pandemic has made things more difficult for everyone and makes all of this harder to make happen.

The different teams will decide what activities they want to do that help them achieve these four big changes.

All the HSCP will have to develop a plan.

The will need to involve local people in their work and plans.

They will have to think about their own local situation and plan carefully what the next steps will be.
